MISHAP TURNS NUTTING TRIP INTO TRAGEDY

Margaret Young Probably Fatally Injured When Struck on Head.

OCCURRED LATE SUNDAY

Victim Hit as Instrument Thrown by Father Glances from Tree.

Four-year-old Margaret Lucille Young daughter of Mr and Mrs Raymond L. Young of 141 Reed avenue is in a critical condition today at the City hospital, following an accident late yesterday afternoon in which she was struck by a piece of iron pipe thrown into a tree by her father to knock down hickory nuts

The child's left side was paralized by the accident. The pipe was imbedded two inches in the top of her head, puncturing the brain. The family was given little hope for her recovery this morning.

The accident occurred about 5 p m in a woods seven miles east of Marion, in the vicinity of Caledonia The father, grief-stricken, could not remember this morning where the woods is located except that nearby was "the Nesbitt farm"

Raymond L. Young father of the child, cleared all the children from under the tree before he threw the piece of pipe The pipe struck a branch, glanced off and hit the child, imbedding itself in the top of her head Her 11-year old brother Don, rushed to the child and pulled out the pipe

Frantic with grief, the father picked up 'Peggy' and ran with her to his automobile, parked on the roadway on the other side of a fence and gave her to the mother who had sat in the car and witnessed the accident In his haste to get to the hospital, he drove his car at a speed that burned out all of the bearings

In the nutting party with Mr Young and 'Peggy' were her six brothers and sisters Billy, Robert, Donald, Jack Paul and Patsy, and a nephew of Mr Young Richard Midlam of 309 Hane avenue.

Not Unconscious

"Peggy" has been conscious since she was admitted to the hospital. She knows her family and her nurses There may have been a few seconds when the pipe struck her and she sank to the ground, that she was unconscious, but she was conscious during the long ride to the hospital, the family said this morning

ROUND-WORLD FLIERS PICKED UP AT SEA

Globe-Circling Attempt of Wolfgang Von Gronau Ends in Indian Ocean.

By The Associated Press

MANILA, Oct, 10—Captain Wolfgang Von Gronau and three companions abandoned efforts to repair the disabled engine of their globe girdling airplane, forced down on rough seas of the Indian ocean, when the British steamship Karagola turned to their assistance today.

A cryptic radio message from the German flier received here at 4:11 this afternoon (3 11 a. m., Marion time) said :

Steamship Karagola comes our rescue. Thanks your help. Sorry could not finish our program."

The globe encircling plane had been forced down earlier in the day. 200 miles south of Rangoon by a broken water pump.

Besides Von Gronau the plane carried Gert Von Roth, second pilot; Fritz Albrecht, radio operator, and Franz Hack, mechanic.

First word of their distress was heard at 10 15 a. m., (9:15 p. m. Sunday Marion time). Subsequent dispatches told of attempts to repair the pump and of an unsuccessful attempt to take off in rough seas.

The fliers radiod they were down near ship lanes.

Their flight in the "Greenland Wal" started from Isle of Sylt, Germany, July 22. They were to complete the world circuit in Berlin the latter part of this month.

SPECIAL GUARD IS GIVEN COURT

Precautions Taken In Washington as Scottsboro Cases Come Up.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON Oct 10—Preparing for a possible Communist demonstration in the Scottsboro cases which may be reached today in the supreme court for oral argument Capitol officials today ordered the plaza in front of the capitol cleared of automobiles and an extra police guard provided to maintain order

The cases involve a plea of seven Negroes, convicted of assaulting two white girls near Scottsboro, Ala, for the court to set aside their death sentences

When the court last spring announced it would review the cases extra police from the city's force augmented the Capitol police because of reports that Communist demonstrations would be made None developed

Given Precedence

The appeal, charging an unfair trial, was among the first set for oral argument after the court had overhauled its docket, sifting out of nearly 400 cases from those judged worthy of review Today's was the second session of the court's fall term

The hearing of the Negroes' appeal was set last May when the highest court agreed to review the case This action served to stay the execution of the men, who were to have died last June 24

Since the death sentence was pronounced at Scottsboro, the case of the seven Negroes has received wide attention It has been the subject of agitation in this country, and abroad.

When the petition for review was filed with the highest court, the cases of the Negroes were presented by Walter H. Pollok, a New York lawyer. He contended they had not been given trials guaranteed by the constitution, saying their arrests were followed by threats of mob violence that required calling out the state national guard.

Transfer Refused

Pollok also argued that with the public mind inflamed against them the trial judge had improperly refused to permit them to be tried in another county. He also claimed Negroes were excluded from the jury.

Attorney General Knight of Alabama, opposed the view He emphasized that the Alabama supreme court had reviewed the cases and had failed to find any grounds for interfering with the death penalties.

CLOTHING FOR NEEDY CHILDREN IS SOUGHT

Chairman of Welfare Committee of Council of 100 Makes Appeal to Groups, Individuals.

The Community Welfare association, through John P. Probst, chairman of the welfare committee of the Council of 100, today issued an earnest appeal for children's clothing

The problem of caring for children said, is not that of the Council of 100, the Red Cross or the city, but is the problem of every organization and individual.

Only by obtaining the cooperation of every organization. Mr Probst said is it going to be possible to prevent suffering among the children this winter 'Already we are finding' he said 'large numbers of children who are unable to attend school because of the lack of proper clothing"

"We need boys' and girls' outer clothing, boys and girls underclothing sweater coats, overcoats shoes and stockings and we earnestly ask that mothers search for clothing that their children may have outgrown or for which they have no use to prevent the suffering of children of less fortunate families '

He also urged that organizations and groups take up the work of making up clothing from the material received by the city from the National Red Cross. A large number of garments have been cut from this material and are at the Welfare center on Davids street waiting to be made up The work thus far has been done through the efforts of Miss Alice Hane

The chairman also asked that persons having garments to contribute make the necessary repairs where possible before turning them over to the relief organization, pointing out that the repair of one or two garments is not a large matter whereas when it is multiplied by several hundred it becomes an almost impossible task

The distribution of the clothing and shoes will be in charge of the King's Daughters Mr Probst said An order for clothing or shoes is obtained from the relief department at the welfare center and is then taken to the second floor where the child will be equipped so far as it is possible with clothing and shoes which fit.

HOOVER OHIO TALK SLATED

Campaign Speech in Cleveland Fixed for Oct. 15; Others Probable.

TOPIC NOT ANNOUNCED

Date Made Public Following Conference with Party Leaders.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct 10—President Hoover will make a campaign speech on Saturday night, Oct 15, in the Cleveland auditorium

This was made known at the White House but full details remain to be arranged It will be the second presidential campaign trip, he having gone into Iowa last week

Theodore Joslin, one of the President's secretaries, indicated the chief executive probably would return directly to the White House from Cleveland, just as he did after speaking in Des Moines.

He indicated also that the President might make a series of rear platform appearances both enroute to and returning from Cleveland

Joslin did not entirely close the door, however, to the possibility that the President might expand his swing into Ohio and speak formally in other cities beside Cleveland

He said he did not know the subject of Mr Hoover's address, nor whether any specific organization would be addressed by the chief executive Republican campaign managers said some time ago that the President would deliver two speeches in the West or Midwest and one in the East, as his own personal part in the campaign.

Carmi Thompson, chairman of the Cuyahoga county Republican organization, conferred with the President this forenoon about plans for the Cleveland trip He was accompanied by Postmaster General Brown and a delegation from Ohio

Thompson said he understood the President would not reach Cleveland until shortly before the time of his address at 9 30 p m. The auditorium to be used, in which President Coolidge and Vice President Dawes were nominated in 1924, normally holds 9,200 people, but can be enlarged to seat 2,300 more.

PARTY DRIVES IN LULL AFTER ACTIVE WEEK

Whirlwind Campaign Gives Way to Temporary Quiet in Marion County.

FEW SPEECHES SLATED

Mouser-Fletcher Tours of Eighth District Headline Week's Activity.

Marion county today had emerged from a week of whirlwind political activity to the comparative quiet of normal campaign work

Having introduced their gubernatorial candidates and other prominent personages of their respective parties, political leaders of both parties are content they said, to let the campaign 'coast' for a few days

Only regular meetings of organized political units are on the program for the week Party leaders today pointed out that speeches given by state, national and district speakers last week have fired their ward and precinct workers with enthusiasm, and that the messages these speakers brought will be discussed in group gatherings for at least a week

Schedule of Week

Democratic meetings scheduled include the weekly session of the Marion County Democratic club tonight in the headquarters, and a meeting of the Young Voters' division of the club, Tuesday night when county candidates will be introduced The central and executive committees will hold closed meetings.

Republican activities will include a glee club rehearsal Tuesday night at the home of Mrs Eugene Moore at 265 Bellefontaine avenue, a meeting of the Young Women's club and the Young Men's club in Republican headquarters at 199 West Center street on Tuesday night, and the regular meeting of the Women's chapter Saturday night in Republican headquarters.

Mrs Virginia Patcher is president of the Young Women's club, and Walter Guthrie head of the Republican club, is organizing young men of the party

Will Tour District

Both candidates for congress have arranged for a series of addresses throughout the Eighth district this week Congressman Grant E Mouser will appear with David S Ingalls, Republican candidate for governor, at the cornerstone laying of the new federal building at Bucyrus Wednesday at noon, and will attend an Elks club luncheon before this ceremony. Wednesday night, both Ingalls and Mouser will speak at Upper Sandusky. Other engagements arranged for Congressman Mouser are at Forest Tuesday night at 8 and at Marengo Friday.

Brooks Fletcher, Democratic aspirant for Eighth district congressman, will speak tonight at Iberia in the community house, Tuesday noon at the Chamber of Commerce in Kenton on "Making Your Business Pay Under Changing Conditions," Findlay Tuesday night at a committee meeting, and in Liberty township community house in Hancock county Tuesday night on community subjects. He will speak Wednesday night at the Mt. Blanchard school building, and Thursday night to [illegible] Democratic women in [illegible] quarters here.

MARION WOMEN PLAN LEAGUE

Law Enforcement Groups To Be Organized; Will Support President Hoover.

First steps towards the organization of the Women's Law Enforcement league of Marion county were taken this morning when Mrs William H Alexander of Columbus, state chairman of the Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement, addressed a group of women at the City library.

Mrs C R Beerbower a member of the Ohio committee was named chairman of a group to organize such a league The organization meeting will be held Friday night at 7 30 at Trinity Baptist church and will be open to all women of Marion city and county.

The league will become a permanent organization, but for the immediate future will endeavor to get the support of women for President Hoover in the coming election

Mrs W. N. Harder, a member of the Ohio committee, introduced Mrs Alexander this morning

Mrs Alexander quoted statistics to show that 12,000,000 women in the United States favor law enforcement and the Eighteenth amendment and quoted the following from President Hoover's acceptance speech:

"There can be no doubt of the economic benefits of prohibition. Viewing the temperance question only from this angle, prohibition has proved its case I think increased temperance over the land is responsible for a good share of the enormously increased efficiency in production, which statistics gathered by the department of commerce show to have followed passage of the dry law."

She placed the responsibility of saving the Eighteenth Amendment squarely with the women when she said, "The Nineteenth Amendment will save the Eighteenth Amendment."

IS DETAINED AS EXTRADITION MOVE IS MADE

Former Utilities Magnate Taken in Custody at Athens Hotel.

TECHNICALITY IS USED

Taken to Police Station on Claim Papers Not in Order; Passport Examined.

By The Associated Press

ATHENS, Greece, Oct, 10—Samuel Insull, under indictment in Chicago on charges arising from the collapse of his vast utility interests, was detained by police today on a technicality pending extradition proceedings.

Police found him at his hotel as he was having coffee on a balcony and informed him that it would be necessary to accompany them to headquarters because his papers were not in order.

It was first reported that his detention had been requested by the American legation, but police said they acted entirely on their own initiative

Limit Is 48 Hours

It was explained police cannot hold any person more than 48 hours in connection with defective papers. In the meantime police took possession of Mr. Insull's passport in order to examine it They may be authorized to arrest him pending an extradition application by American authorities.

Friends said Mr. Insull, who arrived here yesterday by train from Milan, Italy, had an hour's conversation with Cesare Formichi, baritone of the Chicago opera;

Other opera stars whose fortunes were lost or impaired were considering intervening in court to regain money they had lost in the Insull utilities. But after his conversation with Mr. Insull, the opera singer spoke in a friendly tone about the former utilities executive.

Mr. Insull was under surveillance since early this morning when a number of motor cars drew up outside the hotel where he was staying The drivers of the cars, dressed in plain clothes kept watch on Mr. Insull's balcony where the former financier could be seen resting and drinking coffee. Later his detention was ordered.

No Attempt at Disguise

Mr. Insull had registered at the hotel under his right name.

He was requested later to leave the hotel and accompany the police inspector to the police station.

He arrived here after having left Italy just in time to escape a second attempt of the United States government to have him returned to Chicago to face an indictment for embezzlement.

Insull left Paris last week a few hours before the American embassy, on cabled orders from Washington, asked the French foreign office to have him arrested and held pending extradition proceedings.

From France he went to Italy with his son, Samuel Jr., remained three days and left Saturday for Athens.

HEALTH SEAL DESIGN IS ADOPTED FOR 1932

Leaders Hope To Raise Fund of $250,000 in Annual Anti-T B Drive.

COLUMBUS O Oct 10—Was the 1932 Christmas health seal carrying the picture of two little children singing from a book of carols, the theme The Child Around the Corner which the Ohio Public Health Association has adopted for this year s seal sale, is particularly appropriate

The theme taken from the 1931 prize winning Christmas seal editorial written by G J Kochenderfer of the Mansfield Journal brings home the fact that while one is usually ready and eager to help the child who lives just around the corner one is apt to forget the sick child who lives around the second corner or in some remote community

This year, between Thanksgiving and Christmas the Ohio Christmas Health Seal Committee of which John A Elden Cleveland is chairman hopes to raise $250 000 for tuberculosis work in the state

During the 25 years that seal have been sold Ohio s tuberculosis death rate has been cut in half Elden points out But he continues there is still much to be done The disease still takes a heavy toll among the young people of our state leading all other diseases in the number of deaths between the ages of 15 and 45 It s toward this group that our health workers are directing their attention day, and declines of 1 to 3 points were numerous by early after noon. The list was sluggish, however, and selling failing to develop important volume.

In the rails, losses of about 1 points appeared in Union Pacific and Santa Fe, while New York Central, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific lost a point or more. Miscellaneous issues off 1 to 2 points included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, American Can, Dupont, Eastman, Westinghouse, Case, International Harvester, Public Service of N. J., Studebaker and Nash. During the morning, several issues had advanced temporarily 1 to 1¼ points, including U. S. Steel, Union Pacific, Bethlehem, American Can and others.

Failure of the wheat market to join in the early upturn in shares was disappointing, and contributed to the decline after the steel figures were published. An increase of only 15,460 tons in U. S. Steel's backlog in September was substantially less than had been generally anticipated, although late last week it was said in usually well-informed quarters that the gain would probably be well under 50,000 tons, in contrast to earlier talk of a gain of 100,000 tons or so.

The first of the large railroad systems to report its carloadings for last week was Santa Fe, which handled 27,441 cars, against 26,078 in the previous week. Its last weeks loadings were 18½ per cent under 1931, against a recession of about 19½ per cent in the preceding week. Other reports for last week were awaited with interest, for continuance of the recent improvement in the volume of freight well into October would be contrary to the usual seasonal trend, and would be construed

WHEAT VALUES TEND LOWER

Setbacks in Liverpool Quotations Has Bearish Influence at Chicago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 10—Wheat values tended downward early today influenced by setbacks in Liverpool quotations and by a sharp increase of the amount of wheat afloat for Europe. Unfavorable weather conditions tended to strengthen corn prices. Opening unchanged to ⅛ lower, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ higher and subsequently rose all around.

Reports of showers in dry areas of Argentina had some influence as a bearish factor in wheat, and served more or less to offset firmness shown by securities. Rains relieving drouth in Hungary and Jugo-Slavia were also reported. Besides, pressure of Canadian wheat abroad appeared unabated, with on passage figures up 4,448,000 bushels compared with a week ago.

Argentine, Australian and Russian wheat as well as Canadian were quoted much cheaper than United States wheat. Bears put stress likewise on large receipts of wheat today at Minneapolis and Duluth, and on apparent likelihood big supply today, contrasting with a good sized decrease at this time last year. On the other hand, wintry conditions prevailing in Canada, gave promise of a curtailment of the rural movement of wheat. Big receipts of corn here, 607 cars today, acted as a curb on corn and oats price advanced.

Upturns of hog values helped to strengthen the provisions market.

Mute Who Hiked 37,000 Miles Stops in Marion

Ralph Kenedy Bradford, 30, of Indianapolis, Ind., a deaf mute who claims he has hiked 37,000 miles alone, is in Marion on one of his several jaunts across the United States.

The destination of his present hike is New York City where he hopes to meet Robert L. Ripley who two years ago featured Bradford in his "Believe It Or Not" column.

Bradford today is interviewing city and county officials, obtaining from them a letter testifying that he has visited Marion. He has testimonials from officials in dozens of cities in many states.

Before going to New York, Bradford plans to go to Columbus to see Governor White, whom he asserts will be the forty-fourth governor he has met. He claims to have shaken hands with the late President Harding and former President Coolidge.

Bradford claims to have hiked across the United States 14 times and to have worked his way on tramp steamers to England, Cuba, Germany, France, Hawaii, Alaska, South America and Central American countries.

According to press clippings he carries with him, he began hiking nine years ago to overcome an infantile paralysis ailment, which is now almost cured. He came here from Kenton, and will leave Tuesday for Columbus.

His living expenses are obtained from the sale of a booklet of his experiences, he stated.

AUTO CLOCK STOLEN

The theft of an automobile clock from his car while parked on the lot south of the Elks temple was reported to the police by F. E. Blake of 286 Franklin street Saturday night.

Two New Boilers Remove Heating Worries of Attendants at Hospital

NEW HOSPITAL BOILERS

THE approach of winter holds no terror for the City hospital since two new boilers were installed in the place of its 21-year-old heating plant recently.

Patients in the hospital need have no fear of being moved from one floor to another to find warm rooms next winter, as was frequently necessary in the past during periods of extreme cold.

The new heating plant consists of two boilers made in Michigan City, Ind., whose capacity is far above any present heating need of the hospital.

ONE boiler in fact, will heat the hospital under ordinary conditions, leaving one boiler to use in case of a breakdown. In extreme weather, both will be used.

They were installed by Probst Bros. under contract with the city, for $2,675.

Fuel costs, according to Safety Director Emery Murphy, will be approximately half the cost of firing the old boiler, which was badly bulged, corroded and pitted. It had been declared unsafe for use, and in 1930 had broken down, leaving the hospital without heat for nearly 24 hours.

EXTREMELY cold days, in recent winters found the old boiler, smaller than either of the two now in use inadequate to force heat to the third floor. West rooms of the third floor were colder than others, and on many occasions patients were moved from them to other rooms or to other floors.

Should the hospital be enlarged in the future, the plant would be adequate to heat the additional quarters. Additional capacity could be given the boilers by the addition of comparatively inexpensive sections of the boilers.

Relief From Neuralgia In Few Minutes

Quick Dissolving Property of BAYER ASPIRIN Starts Relief 3 or 4 Minutes After Taking

Think of a headache going in three or four minutes. The pains of neuralgia, neuritis or rheumatism being eased, often, in that little space of time!

Due to important, scientific developments in the famous Bayer Aspirin laboratories, millions of people are enjoying this almost unbelievably quick relief from pain.

That is because Bayer Aspirin dissolves almost instantly in the stomach. And thus almost INSTANTLY starts to ease pain. The average headache, for instance, eases in as little as four or five minutes. Think of what a time saver this is to busy people.

Remember it is Genuine BAYER Aspirin which provides this unique property. So see that you get the real article when you buy. See that these three words "Genuine Bayer Aspirin" are on any box or bottle of aspirin that you buy. And that the name "Bayer" is stamped in the form of a cross on any tablet that you take.

Remember that when you buy. And remember, too, that Genuine Bayer Aspirin cannot harm the heart. Take care you get the genuine.

Beware the Cough or Cold that Hangs On

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

OHIO CORN IN FINE CONDITION

Frost Arrives Too Late To Do Serious Damage; Belated Rains Help.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10—Jack Frost arrived too late to do much damage in Ohio's corn territory, the Ohio Farm Bureau research department reported today. Virtually the entire crop is well matured and in shock.

The corn crop was helped by belated fall rains over most of Ohio. Late May crops and fall pastures also were improved.

Prices for Ohio's late potato crop are expected to go higher because of an approximate three per cent decline in the nation's potato crop prospects, due to severe blight in Maine and drouth in eastern Colorado to northwestern Minnesota.

Fall seedings of about 38,805,000 acres of winter wheat are indicated by the farmers' reports on their intentions to plant. In the autumn of 1931, seedings were 40,172,000 acres and in the fall of 1930, they were 43,526,000 acres.

Milk production in the first of September was about the same as last year on that date. The four per cent decrease in production per cow was offset by nearly four per cent more milk cows on farms.

President E. A. O'Neal of the American Farm Bureau Federation will address a series of nine county farm bureau and other meetings in Ohio the week of Oct. 17, it was announced today by Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. He will discuss farm problems and their solutions.

The Campaign Puzzle

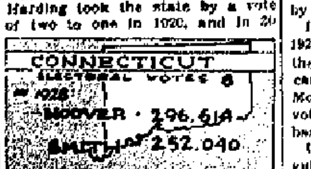

Study Past State-by-State Votes in Making Your Forecasts

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the ninth of 16 articles showing how states voted in the 1928 presidential election and pointing out developments since).

Republicans usually have been able to count upon the staunch support of Connecticut. Warren G. Harding took the state by a vote of two to one in 1920, and in 20 years the state has given the most votes to a Democratic presidential candidate but once, in 1912.

Alfred E. Smith and his prohibition views were able in 1928 to reduce the Republican majority in the state to less than 45,000. Connecticut long has been acknowledged a wet stronghold.

Democrats succeeded in the 1930 elections in obtaining narrow majorities or Wilbur L. Cross, former dean of the Yale graduate school, for the governorship and for two of their five candidates for congressional seats.

J. Henry Roraback, Republican national committeeman, attributed the 1930 results to economic conditions. The prohibition issue also figured in these campaigns.

Prohibition has been a widely discussed issue in the current campaign. Both parties have included repeal planks in their state platforms.

Connecticut supported Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic nomination throughout the convention balloting at Chicago. State leaders who supported Smith have since given their indorsement to the party's nominee.

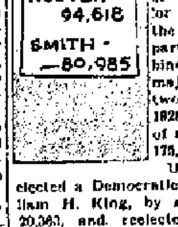

Connecticut has eight electoral votes this year. In 1928 it had seven.

Utah, one of the two states carried by Taft in 1912, has established a Republican record broken only by its vote for Wilson in 1916.

In the presidential campaign of 1928 Utah was keenly interested in the prohibition views of the two candidates. The attitude of the Mormon church is dry, and the voting strength of the state long has been cast on that side.

Utah has had no senatorial or gubernatorial elections since 1928. In the congressional elections of 1930 Republican candidates were elected in both districts in the state by a combined majority of 18,099 of a total of 144,349 votes for candidates of the two major parties. The combined Republican majority in the two districts in 1928 was 19,226 of a total vote of 175,054.

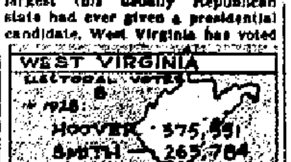

Utah in 1928 elected a Democratic senator, William H. King, by a majority of 20,363, and reelected George H. Dern (D) as governor for his second term.

Silver is an issue of major importance in this year's presidential campaign, as well as in the senatorial campaign in which Reed Smoot (R), dean of the senate, is opposed by Dr. Elbert D. Thomas (D), professor of political science in the University of Utah.

Utah has four electoral votes this year, as formerly.

Herbert Hoover's majority in West Virginia in 1928 was the largest this usually Republican state had ever given a presidential candidate. West Virginia has voted for only one Democratic candidate in 40 years, giving its vote to Wilson in 1912.

The prohibition views of the rival candidates formed an outstanding issue in the 1928 presidential campaign, but popular attention was divided between that contest and a lively race between M. M. Neely (D.) and Henry D. Hatfield (R.) for the senate. The lake cargo coal freight rates case formed a major issue in the senate campaign, in which Hatfield was elected 327,266 to 317,420.

Neely was a candidate again in 1930, defeating James Ellwood Jones (R.) by a vote of 342,437 to 209,427. Economic conditions and coal freight rates were the issues most widely discussed in this campaign.

Registrations in both parties have shown an increase in 1932 over 1928. Republican registration has increased from 445,570 to 473,045. Democratic registration rose from 360,531 to 460,876.

Economic and taxation programs have been outstanding in this year's political discussions in both state and national fields.

West Virginia this year has eight electoral votes, as formerly.

SENATOR ROBERT JOHNS BULKLEY has been active politically for more than 20 years. Graduated from Harvard college in 1906, he practiced law at Cleveland and was elected to congress in 1911. He was reelected for a second term. He was a delegate to the Democratic national convention at Baltimore in 1912, at St. Louis in 1916, and at Chicago in 1932. In the World war he was chairman of the legal committee of the general munitions board of the council of national defense and later of the war industries board. He reorganized the legal department of the U. S. shipping board, emergency fleet corporation, and served temporarily as general counsel. In 1930 he was elected U. S. senator to fill the unexpired term of Senator Theodore E. Burton, deceased. He was renominated without opposition. He married Katherine Pope of Helena, Mont., in 1909. Mrs. Bulkley died in 1932. He has two children, Robert Johns, Jr., and Katherine.

ATTORNEY GENERAL GILBERT BETTMAN, a native of Cincinnati, was nominated on the Republican ticket for United States senator as the crowning honor in a career as school teacher, lawyer and public official. Like his opponent, Senator Bulkley, Bettman is a graduate of Harvard law school. For 15 of the 20 years he practiced law in Cincinnati, he taught without pay in the Y. M. C. A. night school. Bettman volunteered in the World war and was commissioned captain, serving until the end in the military intelligence division of the general staff. In 1922 he was elected commander of the American Legion in Ohio. As chairman of the national legislation committee, he helped draft the adjusted compensation (bonus) bill and the law which created the veterans' bureau. He was elected attorney general in 1928. He is married and the father of three children.

Don't let Anyone kid you —

He-men like 'em Mild

You might think that a two-fisted fellow like the steel jack in the picture would like his tobacco strong. Not at all.

He wants his cigarettes mild and that's why he picks Chesterfields.

Mildness doesn't mean a smoke that's weak or flat or insipid or anything like that. In fact it's just the reverse. Two-fisted fellows as well as anyone else—men and women—want a cigarette that's mild . . . one that satisfies—and that's Chesterfield.

We believe that every smoker is looking for a cigarette without any "bite" or bitterness, and a cigarette that has a pleasing taste—and that's Chesterfield.

STRESSES NEED OF EDUCATION

Vernon Heights School Head Addresses Religious Federation on "Citizenship."

The question of the rightness of laying so much stress on building better highways and laying down when it came to educating the young people who will be the citizens of tomorrow was raised by R. A Garvin superintendent of Vernon Heights Junior High school in his address on Good Citizenship before the Men's Religious federation yesterday afternoon at the First Church of the Brethren.

As the part schools play in laying a foundation which will produce good citizens in the next generation he pointed to the training in truthfulness health and thrift which are a part of all school curriculums

Explains Purpose

The meeting opened with devotions by N J Riemer and prayer by U E Hootman Rev G G Canfield pastor of the church sang several numbers In a short business meeting W P Cass of Central Christian church president of the federation brought before the federation that some Marion people have the wrong impressions of the organization believing that the federation was started to turn it into a Bible school later and rob the church Bible schools of their attendance

Mr Cass quoted statistics to show that 3 500 men in Marion are not affiliated with a Bible school or a church Overshadowing all other concerns of the church today is this one of widespread non attendance at the public services of divine worship he said It is the cherished hope of this federation that it will help fill the empty pews in all these churches and it can if the men who are leaders in the various churches of Marion will give us their cooperation, Mr Cass said in closing

JAPS MOVE TO BLOT OUT BANDIT FORCES

Americans in Possible Danger as Army Launches Manchurian Campaign.

By The Associated Press

MUKDEN, Manchuria Oct. 10—Determined to obliterate Chinese irregulars and bandits in southern Manchuria before winter comes the Japanese army today launched an intensive drive on a wide front against 30 000 insurgents who have challenged the authority of the Manchukuo government.

Apparently the irregulars already were aware of the impending campaign, for thousands of them were reported in flight before the Japanese advance. Even so the Japanese authorities said, the rebels will have a most difficult time escaping because the whole Korean border is closed against them.

In this new campaign there appeared to be a menace to Americans in Manchuria. The American consular officials here, informed the Japanese intend to use bombing planes, requested that the greatest care be exercised to refrain from bombing American and Protestant missions operating in the area under attack, notably at Tungkun, Kirin, Linkiang and Antung. All the American missions will fly the American flag.

FRANK McERLANE, nicknamed "The Grinning Killer" by associate gangsters, is dead in Illinois

Mr McErlane originated that modern invention, "the one-way ride," on which you go out in the automobile, but do not come back. Somebody finds your body beside the road. Police say McErlane "grinned to be killed." He did not believe that any enemy could get the better of him.

The "one-way ride" inventor has learned that small enemies are more dangerous than big.

He fought hard for his life at the end, but lost. The enemies attacking him were pneumonia germs, too small to be shot.

The association has frequently expressed dissatisfaction with the work of the state parole board holding it had released many dangerous criminals through lack of proper information which the association contends it could have supplied

State Senator Joseph N Ackerman, sponsor of the new criminal law which prevents judges from fixing minimum sentences for convicted men, commented, "Bush and Townsend with their long criminal record, should never have been paroled But that is not the fault of the law"

The Plain Dealer quoted Ackerman as saying the pair "evidently had some political pull that got them out of the penitentiary"

Prentice Reeves, member of the parole board denied any politics was involved in the granting of any paroles.

Saturday's shooting began while Townsend and Bush were still in the act of attempted robbery of the jewelry store in downtown Cleveland.

My Beauty Hint

BY NANCY CARROLL

HAVE you ever tried a "bath-tub facial?"

With a bath-tray across the tub to hold a mirror and the cream, oil and astringent jars I first apply a cleansing cream to my face. Next, I pat oil beneath my eyes and nourishing cream into my face and neck. With a rubber patter of my fingers I then gently tap these cosmetics into the pores.

After this I usually rest in the tub for 10 minutes. Then I rub off the cream, use a mild astringent to tone up my skin and apply a piece of ice wrapped in a towel to my eyes, forehead and neck. A cold shower is the final touch. This is very refreshing after a day's work.

State and National Women's Club Leaders Come from Group Formed Here in 1895

There follows the first of a series of feature articles on a number of the older clubs for women in Marion, to be published in The Marion Star. A review of the histories of these clubs is particularly applicable at this time as the groups are now opening their fall and winter programs.

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

THE figure 13 combined with Friday held no terrors for a group of Marion women who, in response to an anonymous invitation to attend a meeting on Friday, Dec 13, 1895, met in the Y. M. C. A. building and organized the Woman's club, the oldest club in the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs.

A double jinx loomed when the roll call revealed that only 13 women had responded to the invitation which did not tell the nature of the meeting nor bear the signature of the person who sent it. That the jinx failed to work is proven by the outstanding contributions of the club to the literary programs of their organization and the federation, and from whose membership have come leaders in city, state and national literary club activities.

The person or persons responsible for this pioneer step in the foundation of a literary organization in Marion was never made public, and if any member of the newly-formed club had an inkling as to whom it might be, the matter was not discussed. Curiosity as to what might transpire at the meeting and who else might be in attendance may have played no small part in drawing those first members to the Y. M. C. A building on that first afternoon, but that they were eager to further their knowledge in literature and share it with each other from that day on was never a doubtful question.

EACH step taken by the members of the new club was a subject of great discussion and careful consideration, for the woman's club movement was something new in Marion and there were those who viewed the project with a skeptical eye and ready criticism. Once a decision was reached these pioneer women did not falter and no time was lost in preparing a program.

The first programs were a far cry from the attractive ones which followed in the later years, being prepared several at a time and printed on a mimeograph, itself something new. A great deal of time was spent in selecting topics for study and many hours were devoted to research work in the preparation of the papers. The women listened with interest when some member, fortunate enough to have visited some distant state or county told of her travels. One program of particular interest was the visualizing of the story, "Ramona," by one of the members, who told of visiting many scenes in the novel on her visit to California.

Papers that first year included "Early History of Ohio," "Cities of Ohio," "State Institutions," "Our Famous Men," "Our Literature," with selections from Phoebe and Alice Cary, "Across Pennsylvania," "Settlement and Growth of Pennsylvania," "Philadelphia," "New York, Its Early Settlement, Literature, Pronounced Characteristics," "Up the Hudson," "James Fenimore Cooper" and "Washington Irving."

MEETINGS in those early days as now, were held once a week and social meetings, at which husbands of the members were guests, played no small part in the club activities. The meetings were held on regular dates but the newly-organized club careful that no criticism fall on its head, moved dates forward or backward in order that they might not interfere with other activities in the city. An account of one meeting held the first year, the members met on Saturday afternoon "in deference to the meetings in progress at Epworth M. E. church."

Mrs. Frank H King, Mrs. C. C. Pettit and Mrs. J. E. Guthery, charter members of the club, are still active members and this year Mrs. King will preside as president and Mrs. C. C. Pettit as vice president. Mrs. Herman S. Rhu is recording secretary for the 1933-33 season, Mrs. Laura Dombaugh, corresponding secretary, Mrs. S. E Barlow, treasurer and Mrs W. N. Harder, critic.

The first meeting will be held Monday, Oct 2 at the home of Mrs. J P Robinson north of the city when the members will be guests at a 1 o'clock luncheon. The meeting will open the study of a biographical program on the subject, "Other Peoples Lives."

MISS MARY MOREY ELECTED BY CIRCLE

Miss Mary Morey was named president at the meeting of the Shining Cross circle, Junior King's Daughters Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Mary Catherine Miley of South Seffner avenue. The officers were installed following the election. Miss Eva Davis was elected vice president, Miss Anna Marie Hastings, secretary, and Miss Miley, treasurer. A social hour and refreshments were enjoyed following the business session. The next meeting will be Nov. 13.

Will Be Hostess.

Mrs. Lloyd McCleary will entertain members of Florence Fitzhardinge W. C. T. U. at the regular program meeting Tuesday afternoon at her home at 284 Latourette street.

She saw Rosamund with the suitcase in her hand.

She saw other things.

After a long time no more bubbles rose. Her mind was dark and empty. She went up to her room, and at the first sound of her foot on the stair, there was Ryan, keeping step with her. She locked the door upon them both; she locked the door into Jervis' room.

Then she undressed and lay down on her bed. A heavy weight of fatigue made all her limbs feel like lead. She law down and covered herself with the sheet. With no interval at all, she dropped into the deepest depths of sleep.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Grantland Assigns Noel to Light Signal Flares To Guide Dicky When He Makes a Landing in the Glade with His Auto-Gyro.

HUGH GRANTLAND put a firm hand upon my arm as he warned Harry Underwood to rush everybody back against the pine trees encircling the glade in which we were standing. The words were hardly out of his mouth before he had run with me to the shelter of a little irregular jog in the circle of trees, so that while in the circular glade in one sense, in another I was outside it.

"You'll be safe here, I think," Hugh said. "But don't stir! I'll be back."

He turned away and began to skirt the trees. He was running beautifully, effortlessly, and I remembered that he had been a crack member of his track team at college. Then the darkness swallowed him up. In less than a minute he was back, still keeping close to the trees, and followed by all the rest of our party except Wynne. He ranged us all in line against the trees, warning us not to move from our places.

Wynne came dashing back as he finished and handed something to Hugh, who took it and then spoke quickly, incisively.

"Go back to the men, Wynne, and keep them on their toes. Mr. Underwood and I will be there to give you the signal. It may be delayed a minute or two."

He turned to us as Wynne vanished into the darkness. In my mind three distinct trains of thought were going on. With one I was paying attention to Hugh. With another I was noting that we were upon the other side of the glade—I judged directly across—from the opening through which we had entered. With the third I was agonizedly listening to the whir of Dicky's motor, which now seemed directly above us.

"For some inexplicable reason," Hugh began, and I resentfully imagined that there was disapproval in his voice, "Mr. Graham is flying an auto-gyro tonight, which can only mean that he intends to make a landing somewhere near here. It is not as foolhardy a feat as it appears, however, for there have been so many aeroplanes flying over here the last day or two on the pretended business which we have advertised on free posters, that I do not believe the kidnapers will pay any attention to him. Even if they do, they will not have time to do anything about it. They will have their hands full with us."

His voice was suddenly grim as he finished, but I was not concerned with its intonation. All my faculties were fused upon one stupendous fact. Dicky meant to make a landing, at what risk I could only conjecture, with a terror that I strove mightily to keep inaudible.

"This is the only open space near the shack where there is room to land an auto-gyro," Hugh went on, "so he undoubtedly will come down here. He does not know that we are here, so he will make no provision for that in coming down. Do not move your places, and—Noel!"

His utterance of the name was a command, and Noel's answer was a prompt assent.

"Right here, sir. What can I do?"

His voice breathed eager enthusiasm for any task, and beside me I heard Mary catch her breath, whether in fear or envy—our adventurous Mary—I did not know.

"Mr. Graham must not come down on this side of the glade if we can prevent him," Hugh said. "I want you to take these flares, go to the other side, kneel down and light them. From one side, they will not show above the trees, but he will be able to see them. You'll have to watch sharp, though. He'll come down fast. Don't forget that in the excitement of tending the flares. Come on, I'll go with you and show you how they're done. Then I'll have to leave you to yourself. Now, remember," sternly to the rest of us, "do not move!"

He walked rapidly away with Noel, both keeping close to the trees, while from over head came the steady drone of Dicky's motor.

"Oh! What is he doing?" I whispered tensely, for I was almost beside myself with fear. I am always terrified when Dicky is in the air, and there is a valid reason for my jangled nerves. Never have I been able to blot from my memory that day at the Mineola air field during the war, when I stood helpless while Dicky high above me battled futilely and gamely with a wing treacherously cut, and finally crashed to earth, saved from death only by his own almost superhuman skill.

So absorbed was I in my battle to keep from shrieking my fear aloud that I hardly noticed Hugh's return, as he passed close to us and on to the place where I knew the men were waiting for the attack upon the shack. But I heard with quickened terror Harry Underwood's answer to my whispered query.

"He's circling above us, getting ready to shut off the motor and come down. Ah! Noel has the flares going. I hope he remembers to watch the Dickybird's boat."

Mary clutched my arm hard.

"I can't stand this," she whispered, with her lips close to my ear. "Don't give me away, but I'm going to Noel."

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, Oct. 11

ASIDE from some petty setbacks or disappointments, this day's astral activities point to a very interesting and intriguing state of affairs. Indeed the intriguing, subtle and clever will dominate to the advantage of the interests, especially if negotiations be made through large corporations, combines or secret societies. The mind will be stimulated to art, literature and the finer considerations of life, and there may be great emotional stimulus or romantic affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an interesting and eventful year, despite small worries, annoyances and setbacks. The best interests will be advanced through subtlety, intrigue or diplomacy, in conjunction with mergers, rings, or secret societies. The inclinations and activities may be centered on literary or artistic pursuits, with profit and distinction, and romance may figure prominently in the year's adventures. A child born on this day may be artistic, literary, subtle, secretly ambitious, possibly inclined to a life of duality or intrigue.

Notable activity: Theodore Thomas, orchestra leader.

Another thing, if you are tortured with itching toes, with peeling skin and small watery pustules, this grand ointment will bring blessed relief right away—all itching ceases and after a few applications the distressed toes will be as good as new again.

Druggists will be glad to tell you that there is nothing better on earth for eczema, old sores, itching skin, pimples, rash, chafing—one 25 cent box will prove it.—Adv.

VENUS DE TEXAS

The famous Venus de Milo of the ancients had nothing on this beautiful Texas girl, Miss Marie Knight, of Gonzales, according to her friends. Miss Knight was recently adjudged the most beautiful model in Texas. She has blond eyes, perfect form and has had over one hundred proposals of marriage.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasant results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

Who Said Pork?

One may argue with considerable conviction and enthusiasm that the only sensible way to compare presidential candidates would be to let them debate with each other on the same platform. That is impossible, of course. The fact must be faced that there is no sensible way of determining a man's qualifications to be president of the United States. It is necessary to face another fact, also. If there were a sensible way, it would not be used sensibly.

President Hoover, when he journeyed to Des Moines, made his first campaign speech. It was a reply to certain points in various speeches made previously by his political opponent. Democrats and Republicans have agreed in their comments since then that it was a good speech—one of Mr. Hoover's best efforts. They have praised it, both as a reflection of the man and as a logical presentation of facts affecting the nation's welfare.

Mr. Roosevelt, of course, does not praise anything his opponent says. Neither does Mr. Hoover. Each is duly bound to pounce on the other, that being what voters expect and encourage in a campaign. They must debate at long range, in other words. In effect, such a method of explaining their views is about as effective as two farmers standing 20 feet apart and going through the motions of hanging.

One phrase in Mr. Roosevelt's retort to Mr. Hoover attracts attention. It is "pork barrel campaigning." The Democratic candidate charges the President with making "belated promises" to catch the agricultural vote. He charges the administration with a consistently unfriendly attitude toward farmers, which is obviously untrue. One of the advantages in long range debating is the privilege of speaking into thin air, with no possibility of an embarrassing reply being hurled back before there is time to get set for it.

Who is it that accuses President Hoover of promising public resources for the sake of gathering votes? What are the promised policies of the man who believes himself justified in throwing such a stone at the opposition? Is Mr. Roosevelt's glass house shatter proof, by any chance?

No candidate ever promised to distribute the resources and power of government over a larger section of the national population than Franklin D. Roosevelt. Examination of his agricultural program reveals an intention to do fully as much for farmers as Mr. Hoover promises to do, the difference in the programs being Mr. Hoover's ability to speak specifically where Mr. Roosevelt is vague.

Mr. Roosevelt promises to do everything in his power to commit the federal government and state governments into the business of producing and distributing power, in order to make it available at lower rates. In this particular proposal, as in his general policy, he admits a conviction that paternalism is the solution of the nation's problems.

This is not, in the strict sense, "pork barrel campaigning." The phrase, ordinarily, is reserved for more opprobrious designation. But Mr. Roosevelt has dared to use it to describe promises of aid which are only an introduction to those he has been making. At one point on the Des Moines trip President Hoover made a statement concerning his opponent's unsportsmanlike tactics. He hasn't seen anything yet, if Mr. Roosevelt's latest broadside is an indication of what is coming.

Another Side.

If progress toward disarmament waits on education of various national populations to the point where delegates to disarmament conferences can do something besides play on the safe side, the world disarmament conference never should have been allowed to appear the hopeless failure that people believe it was. Ways and means should have been found by leaders of the disarmament movement to show the conference in a favorable light.

A brief article in the current issue of the Federal Council Bulletin, written by Mary E. Woolley as a summary of an address, is a sample of what might have been done. Miss Woolley, one of the United States delegation to the conference, almost succeeds in wearing a cheerful face when viewing the results of the months of debate and deadlock.

In one paragraph, she says: "It is hard for any one who has 'come to grips' with the difficulties of international agreement, to understand the point of view that nothing was accomplished. Prominent members of the League of Nations, including the secretary-general, told me that infinitely more was accomplished than they had dared to hope for before the conference convened."

This is a valuable point of view for those who have permitted themselves to be discouraged by visible accomplishments. It is not that they have been in error; so far as results are concerned the conference was a failure. It is possible for leaders to be comforted by prospects. The masses, fortunately perhaps, must be given results.

Even so, far too little attention has been given to such developments as the Hoover disarmament plan, which, according to Miss Woolley, saved the conference by opening the way for further progress. True, there have been many other things to occupy national attention during recent times, but the world has had time for more statements like that one Miss Woolley has made. It is the duty of leaders who believe with her that real progress is being made to get their views before the people who eventually will make or break the disarmament movement.

The Straw Vote Stimulus.

Republicans could not hide their apprehension over the results of the Literary Digest presidential poll if they tried. The current issue of the magazine contains the results of 782,000 ballots, covering 20 states in the East, South, Middle-west and West. Fifty-six per cent of the total electoral vote is covered and Roosevelt is far ahead.

If it were not an established fact that the Democratic party in this election is riding high on a wave of discontent, the results of the poll would indicate that the Republican party is fighting a hopeless battle. But Mr. Hoover's supporters are more inclined to the belligerent attitude of John Paul Jones who, when the enemy was boarding his ship and seeking his surrender, stoutly asserted he was just beginning to fight.

It has been within the last week that President Hoover demonstrated the effectiveness of a fighting front. His success on the journey to and from Des Moines has given his friends new courage. Mr. Roosevelt has reached the climax of his popular appeal, it is safe to say. It has not been high enough; Republicans believe that between now and election day Mr. Hoover's strength will increase consistently.

It is unnecessary to go into other Literary Digest polls to show the possibilities of error. While it is true that the poll has indicated the winner in past years, it has not been proved infallible. If it has shown the wind blowing the wrong way in the case of individual states, there is a possibility that in a year of national uncertainty its entire trend might be reversed between the first week in October and election day.

It is generally admitted, even by Democrats, that there is little enthusiasm for Governor Roosevelt. His strength lies in the grudge held against the administration for its inability to conjure an immediate cure for national economic sickness. In his campaign thus far he has worked hard to hold this protest vote, but he has demonstrated nothing to match the deep appeal of the fighting Hoover who spoke at Des Moines. The Roosevelt bandwagon has been rolling along in a smooth road this far, but there is rough going ahead.

For the Good of the Party.

James J. Walker, once mayor of New York City and now a dead man without a job, has reached the end of a spectacular career in politics. But, like the excellent showman he is, he didn't let his old friends, the Walker voters, forget him—not even as he entered the spooky doorway of oblivion.

Tammany hall, the former mayor's sponsor, was in the most uncomfortable spot it has occupied within memory. It had suffered ignominious defeat in the state convention by being unable to name a governor. Franklin D. Roosevelt, whom the hall opposed for the Democratic presidential nomination, had joined hands with Alfred E. Smith, loyal Tammanyite, to give the organization a rattling kick where it hurts politicians the most.

Tammany could understand Governor Roosevelt turning against it; he has an axe to grind. If he can demonstrate beyond doubt that he is not fond of the Tammany tiger, he will be able to pick up a certain number of votes which never are cast for anything with the Tammany label. That much was perfectly clear. Tammany knew what to expect.

But Mr. Smith's defection came as somewhat of a surprise. It entailed renewal of friendship with Mr. Roosevelt; it meant close cooperation in the job of selecting a nominee for governor acceptable to both. That man, Herbert H. Lehman, was given the nomination. Tammany, which took a long chance and lost the gamble, by refusing to fall in with the plan, might as well have remained away from the convention. It was an acutely serious defeat.

Replacement of former Mayor Walker by another candidate was presaged by collapse of the hall's influence. If Roosevelt and Smith could win once they could win again. The only question was whether a weakened Tammany tiger would come out for another beating.

Tammany played safe. Its leader, John F. Curry, who had been given the worst defeat any Tammany chief has suffered, knew when he had had enough. He was lucky to get out of the tornado that had hit him with the privilege of being allowed to say that the candidate for mayor, John P. O'Brien, was a compromise choice.

Former Mayor Walker, somewhere between the United States and Europe when the nomination was agreed upon by the leaders, was given an opportunity to bow out gracefully with a message offering up his life for the good of the party—the most beautiful and the rarest, gesture a politician can make. The man who is his successor as Democratic fair-haired boy could do no more. Temporarily, the amazing efficiency of Acting Mayor McKee is forgotten in the excitement of watching political wheels turn.

One of them was wobbling dangerously Thursday night. It had been cracked in more places than one and stripped of most of its teeth. The things that have happened to Tammany hall in the last few days are an important development in this nation's political history. The outstanding symbol of machine politics and bad government on this continent has been touched by hands that threaten to do it fatal harm.

Comment of the Press

BOYS ARE STILL THE SAME.

An interesting comparison has been made recently between the intellectual interests of the boys of 40 years ago and the boys of the same age in present days. Men of advanced middle-age that have achieved success in life, have been asked what they used to read when they were young, and the children's department of libraries in big and small cities have been asked what books have the greatest circulation among the boys between 10 and 14 years of age.

The freely given answers to this question show that boys have not changed a bit during the last four decades. The present day boys might be somewhat more sophisticated and know more of life than the boys of 1890, but nevertheless they have the same four national interests in their reading. Books on adventure and travel are still the most-wanted books in the public libraries by boys of that age, and all our big men that were asked about their juvenile reading "tale about without hesitating that the same two topics were foremost in their minds when they were youngsters.

Needless to say that the boy of today has many more advantages than the boy of 40 years ago ever had. The present day boy is more world-wise, and he is in many things not nearly so inexperienced and unsophisticated as we were when we were young. Nevertheless it is refreshing to note that the intellectual mind of our modern boys has not changed a whit. Boys are still boys, no matter in what age they are living, and today, as of yore, adventures and travel experiences are foremost in the minds of our youngsters.—Newark Advocate.

Daily Guide to Health

BY DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

Measles Serious and Often Fatal.

Now comes the uncomfortable statement from the Department of Health of New York City that measles in infancy continues to be a serious and fatal disease. Contrary to common belief, measles is a serious ailment. It is particularly dangerous when it affects children under two years of age.

The medical profession has long recognized the danger of measles in young persons. If mothers would come to look upon measles as a serious disease and not as a normal occurrence of childhood, there would be fewer fatalities. Every precaution should be taken to guard infants and young children from this infection.

Children should never be deliberately exposed to measles. When the disease is prevalent in your neighborhood, take all the steps possible to prevent its spread. Bear in mind that measles is a real menace, that it is particularly dangerous when it afflicts those who have physical defects or are undernourished.

There is a great deal of confusion concerning measles. In its early stages it is easily mistaken for a simple cold, yet when neglected and allowed to run its course without the proper care, dangerous complications, such as bronchial pneumonia, may take place.

Measles is easily recognized at about the fifth day, for at this stage the characteristic rash appears. It comes out behind the ears and about the neck, rapidly spreading over the face and body. It is much better if the disease is recognized before this stage. Early knowledge will prevent exposure and the danger of spreading the infection.

Always suspect measles when a child with signs of a simple cold complains of pain in the eyes. If the eyes are red and the child has a fever and is restless, do not delay but call your doctor at once. With proper care the attack may be mild and run its course within a short time. Even if it is a light case, however, remember that the danger of complications is present. These can be avoided only by keeping the patient in bed and following your doctor's orders.

Remember, particularly, that although the effect of the ailment may be exceedingly slight in your own child, he may transmit it in a more serious form to another child. So do not consider measles as a simple disease in any case. Give it attention and the necessary care, for the protection of your own child and other children.

Highlights of Ohio History

BY S. H. GALBRAITH

WASHINGTON IN OHIO

General Washington once considered, in the dark hours of the Revolution, falling back into the valley of the Ohio if the colonies lost in the struggle and there obtaining that freedom for which they fought, but he set foot on Ohio soil only once and never acquired title to any Ohio land.

Once in his early life, Washington descended the Ohio almost to the mouth of the Scioto and made careful note of the character of the land, but he was interested chiefly in that on the southern side of the Ohio.

Tired of the cramped quarters in the boat, he once landed on the Ohio side and with a companion walked across the little peninsula made by a bend of the river adjacent to what is now Meigs county, boarding the boat again on the other side.

That little point of land now is in Letart township, Meigs county, and that township has the distinction of being the only bit of ground in Ohio ever pressed by the feet of the Father of His Country.

A Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—There'll be a mad scramble on capitol hill shortly among those members of the house who survive the elections of November, for the congressmen will begin squabbling over space in their new office building.

It's a favorite pastime—scrambling for better office space. And now with the new $7,000,000 white granite marble building containing 206 additional suites of offices thrown open, it will be livelier than ever.

Newcomers to the house this year will be just out of luck. It will be the old-timers who have first pickings. For seniority is the thing that counts in getting office space just as it is the ruling factor in everything else on the hill.

The new building is expected to increase greatly the efficiency of the representatives. At present each member has only one room. He has with him in this room at least two clerks with typewriters. Many have three or four clerks and secretaries.

Conferences with constituents must be held in the presence of these employes of out in the corridor. There is little privacy and complaints frequently have been made that there is no place where a man can do constructive work.

In the future, each of the members of the house will have at least two rooms—one for his private use and the other for his clerical help. The two buildings will be connected by underground tunnels leading to the capitol proper.

But perhaps what the representatives see of most value in the addition of more space will be that from now on he will be able to shield himself from those he has no particular desire to see.

The office seeker, for instance—now he can open the door and come in upon the congressman without notice. There's no way of stopping him.

There'll be no more of that in the future he can tell his secretary to keep those out he doesn't care to see. And in the new building the architects have provided the number of convenient and unobserved exits for him.

Daily Talk to Parents

BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

THE WIDOWED MOTHER.

The mother who faces the world alone with her children is in a peculiarly trying position.

The loss of her husband not only makes things difficult for her from a practical point of view, but also in a more subtle psychological sense. Her children are, as she says, all that she has. She lives for them.

Especially if she is not financially secure and must make all sorts of sacrifices for them does the tie tend to bind both mother and children with a suffocating closeness. The mother has no choice but to dedicate herself solely to the business of keeping the home together and she demands in return a compensating great devotion.

Such a mother often is proud of the fact that her children are unhappy if she must be away from them. One such mother, unbelievable as it may seem, refused to allow her little boy to be sent to a kindergarten in spite of the fact that his going would have made it possible for her appreciably to eke out their slender income.

"Billy would die of lonesomeness for me," she said. "He's so attached I couldn't bear to let him be away from me every day. No, we'll just have to get along as best we can."

There is something dangerously unwholesome in the fulsomeness and self-indulgent sentimentality of this attitude. It prepares the way, of course, for later difficulties.

Then, when it is too late to teach independence, the mother wonders what she has done to deserve children who are unable to share the heavy responsibilities which she now feels that she has carried alone long enough.

Europe Day by Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE

VENICE, Oct. 10—After years of thumb-twiddling at the gushing of others, I promised myself to be casual, perhaps arrogant, about Venice. So floating along the Grand Canal the first time in a frail cockleshell, I sniffed: "It seems to me there is a slight whiff of the old Gowanus!" The dirty looks!

Our train to Venice stopped at Chioggia, chiefly because there was nothing else for it to do unless it became amphibious. From then on, one takes up gondolaing in a big way. And, after loitering for a leisurely 10 miles, there sparkled Venice—"the poetical bride of the Adriatic."

My effort at repression is something of a wrench. No other city, with the possible exception of Bangkok, I am told, is like it. One bids adieu to many mechanical megrims. Life suddenly skims into an ecstatic glide. Ridiculously. It struck me. What a place to chase butterflies!

First, and doubtless, my most lasting impression, arriving shortly after dawn, was the tender hush. It seemed when I stepped from the gondola to the stone stairs of the hotel — Danieli's — and asked the skipper "How much?", I was shouting at top voice, so eerily still was everything.

As a matter of simple chronicle I was shrieking before coming to terms with the bandit. But, I confess, it was due largely to lingual ignorance. Every time he mentioned the word lira, I somehow got the notion he was casting aspersions on my unimpeachable veracity. Fancy!

Danieli's, once a famous palace, was a tryst for the mad love affair between George Sand and Alfred de Musset. Our barn-like room has the depression of decadence. Anyway, I'm a hall room boy. But a waiter, answering a summons, somehow touched of a home-like glow. He spoke unaccented English. "You've been to America?" I suggested. Not only had he been there, he was born there, once ushering in the balcony at Hammerstein's and loafing in the East Side pool room where Dago Frank, of the Rosenthal murder, held forth.

I've been in Venice only long enough to do a little unpacking, gaze in the customary subdued awe from a bedroom window, secretly thumb my bank roll, and so unlimbering my typewriter go to work. And, right away, I must correct that tosh about the absence of mechanical noises. Right in the midst of this a staccato put-putt. A glance out the window revealed a huge motor boat racing along hell-for-leather. I added the bag of my illusion to the burlap.

I suppose, instead of being lulled to sleep by a gondolier trolling a Venetian chorus, the soft swish of lazy waters or the muted plunk-plunk of a mandolin. Or the Venetian Hom Mixes will be "mozzlightin' bronks" on the cobbled side streets.

It occurred to me, before writing more, I should obey a vague demiurge and stroll about a bit. So I drifted down the boulevard-like hall to Harry Silvey's room. Instead of being drugged in happy reveries by beauty surrounding him on every hand, he was fiercely brushing his clothes. He has worn two of those extra long whiskbrooms to dimensions of Joe Weber's chin whiskers on this trip. "You can take your whisk broom along," I sneered. "Remember the pigeons!"

The late sun was a bonfire of red, sheeting the skies pink and making Venice a glowing tiara of majestic towers. Sweeps of canal mirror the mellow grandeur of kings, now mere smudges in royal crypts. Thus, prowling becomes a phantasy—a sort of sleepwalk, I gets you. Often I've smart-alecked up New York's theatrical district by calling it the Rialto without knowing much what I was talking about. So we stood on the famed Rialto, in reality a district with the bridge a center. About are decaying congeries of offices, fish markets, vegetable stalls. Most impressive to me of all was the stately iron lamp at one corner. Standing beside it, with shadowy arches below and loggia above, would be a dandy place for what's her name to sing that apache threnody, "My Man!"

Homeward in the twilight green, we tarried at a cafe's outside table in a surprisingly narrow and slightly gamey byway. A beaming proprietor graciously inquired: "You like a leetle music, yes?" We nodded and he rushed way, we thought, perhaps, to return with a red-sashed, dreamy-voiced Venetian Vallee. Instead he turned on a gramaphone. "So this," sighed my wife, "is Venice!" I nodded agreeably. After all, I didn't build it.

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

WOMEN NOT SUSPICIOUS

Woman has been called "the weaker vessel, filled with suspicion."

But that, like most popular theories, is all wrong! Women are not really more suspicious than men. They only seem so, because men are such poor deceivers.

Men may have been "deceivers ever;" but, with all their practice, they are still right in the class with the fatuous ostrich. If any woman is deceived by a man, it is because she has succeeded in deceiving herself. Lots of married women go all through life with their eyes shut tight, hoping passionately that the man won't do anything to undeceive them.

But, the average man hasn't patience to go on fooling a woman even when she wants to be fooled. Once he has set his heart or his mind or his eye on another woman, he simply can't be civil to the woman who is in the way. The first sign that a man has a new love is his impatience with the old love. And every woman knows that sign by heart.

It was Anthony Hope—or was it Oscar Wilde?—who remarked that, "as long as a man is in love with a woman she can do nothing wrong; the moment he ceases to be in love with her, she can do nothing right."

When a man has tired of a woman, just the sight of her, just the knowledge of her presence gets on his nerves. Just the sound of her footstep irritates him and arouses his resentment. He feels injured and exasperated that she should still be anywhere around, and regards it as a personal affront that she should go on loving him—against his will!

And that's where woman's "suspicion" comes in. Many a woman might never dream or suspect that her husband had looked at another woman, if he would go right on being pleasant around the house. She might cheerfully swallow all his alibis and sympathies with him for having to work late at the office, so many evenings, if he would come home bringing flowers, instead of the grouch-that-knows-no-brother.

But any woman can tell, just by the disapproving and critical way in which he looks at her, by the way he snaps at her or corrects her, or frowns at her or jeers at her, that a man is thinking of another woman. She doesn't have to see the other woman. She knows that a man must love some one; and she knows that it is no longer herself. Poor ostrich! She is the chief witness against herself.

A woman is much cleverer—and more patient. When she is loving a man, she soothes her conscience and at the same time serves her purpose, by being particularly nice and sweet to him. She becomes suddenly tender and thoughtful and loving. And, of course, as long as a woman is nice to a man, it never occurs to him that she could possibly find anybody else more attractive than he is.

All of which is suggested by a recent wife-murder, in which the gentleman simply couldn't wait for his wife to divorce him, so he settled her in the cellar, and thus gave a jolly steady his arrest. Why can't men be patient? If the stronger vessel were filled with patience, the weaker vessel would not be filled with suspicion.—Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Consternation reigned in the ranks of legislators and lobbyists under indictment at Columbus on bribery charges when it was announced a special session of the grand jury had been called for the following week to hear the confession of Dr. George E. Nye, Pike county representative, who had pleaded guilty to charges of soliciting bribes while a member of the legislature.

The New York Giants won the third game of the World series from the Boston Red Sox, 2-1, Marquard pitching for the Giants and O'Brien and Bedient for the Red Sox.

POWERFUL ASHLAND GRID MACHINE WINS FROM BUCYRUS 50-0

Redmen Administered Worst Defeat in History of Series Between Schools.

With the brilliant Nick Dolby leading a spirited offense, the powerful Ashland High school team swept through Bucyrus Saturday, giving the Kish-coached team a 50-0 drubbing, the worst beating ever handed a Bucyrus team by Ashland. The game was not an N. C. O. contest but stamps Ashland as the most formidable contender for the league title now in possession of Mansfield.

Bucyrus offered only minor resistance to the big Ashland first team and was little more effective against the pony lineup which was inserted in the last quarter. The first stringers rang up 32 points and the lightweights finished up the job with 18 more. Doby scored three of the Stammen's touchdowns, running back one punt 53 yards for a score.

Ashland piled up 410 yards from scrimmage while Bucyrus could advance the ball only 20 yards in the same manner. First downs were 17 to five for Ashland.

LAST PERIOD DRIVE SCORES FOR MARION

Forty-Two Passes Heaved as Both Teams Stress Overhead Offense in N. C. O. Tilt.

BY RON KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

Harding High school's gridiron warriors discovered Saturday afternoon at Fairground field that there is far more to a football game than throwing forward passes. However, while they were going through the process of absorbing this bit of learning they were also taking a 20-7 beating at the hands of a well-coached Shelby team, the first setback of the season for the Presidents and the first victory of the year for the Whippets. The loss, despite the fact it was the first league game, virtually eliminates Marion as a contender for the championship of the N. C. O. Circuit. With only five teams in the circuit, a single setback is disastrous to the titular aspirations of any team.

In only one period, the second, did the Presidents succeed in holding Shelby to anything like an even game. True it was, the breaks of the game seemed to go against Harding on numerous occasions. However, it is equally as true that Shelby, playing an alert game, was taking advantage of everything that came their way while the Presidents were failing to capitalize on breaks in their favor. Harding had 11 first downs to eight for the victors.

Battle of Passes

The game easily can be termed the Battle of the air, as forward passes were hurled with abandon all through the conflict. A total of 44 tosses were made during the game, ranging all the way from short tosses into the flat zone to thirty-yard, 40-yard heaves. Harding threw 24 of the 44, completing only nine of that number while Shelby made good on 13 of 20 attempts. One Shelby toss was intercepted.

It was the almost complete downfall of the vaunted Harding pass attack that spelled defeat for the Presidents. D. N. Bobyer, director general of the Red and Black forces, has drilled his charges in little other than passes most of the season when Shelby wrecked this offense there was little left for the Marion boys to fall back on. Time and again scoring opportunities were offered but each time the running attack bogged down with the Shelby goal line in sight and Whitcum would be forced to drop back and boot the ball downfield or Harding would lose it on downs. Whitcum did a neat job of kicking, his lengthy spirals doing a lot to keep the Whippets from scoring oftener than they did.

Hinklin Plays Well

To Raymond Hinklin, left guard, goes the honor for turning in the best performance for Harding. Hinklin, playing his first full contest, was a tower of strength. He broke through to make more tackles than any other Harding lineman and was in thick of the battle all the time. His tackling was hard and sure, in contrast with that of several other members of the team.

Shelby lost little time in jumping into a first period advantage over Harding. Foltz kicked off for Harding and the ball was downed on the Shelby 20-yard stripe. Harding's line broke up a pair of Shelby smashes and Fry booted the ball to Hero who raced back 20 yards to the Harding 40. Neither team was able to gain and in a subsequent exchange of kicks Fry took one of Whitcum's boots on the Harding 40 and shook off five Harding tacklers as he raced across the goal line for a touchdown. Sharkey smashed across for the extra point on a fake play.

Harding elected to receive the next kick-off but could do nothing with the Shelby forward wall and lost possession of the ball. After a few attempts to gain had failed Fry shot a long pass to Southard who ran the rest of the necessary 33 yards for another tally. A line play failed to add the extra point.

Harding Opens Up

At this point Harding launched a drive toward the Shelby goal that was going great guns as the gun cracked to end the quarter. The intermission broke up the advance as the Whippets came back strong and stopped the Red and Black drive.

The forward passing battle got under way in earnest in the second stanza. Whitcum heaved 11 for Harding and Shelby turned in four. The aerials served to take Harding to within six yards of the promised land but an incomplete heave over the goal line gave the ball to Shelby on the Harding 20, just before the half ended.

Shelby took up in the third frame right where they left off in the second and before Harding managed to gather together its shattered defense, the Whippets had tallied another six pointer and added the extra point to make it Shelby 20, Harding 0.

Harding opened up another offensive late in the period and had reached the Shelby 34-yard marker when the third period ended, most of the gains coming through successful passes.

The attack continued into the final quarter and finally produced the first Harding points, Whitcum crashing six yards through center for the touchdown. Guthrie carried the ball to the six-yard line after a receiving a 22-yard pass from Whitcum. Whitcum booted the ball between the uprights with Guthrie holding it for the extra point.

Shelby took the kick-off and the remainder of the game saw the air literally teeming with passes as Harding made a futile attempt to score again. Shelby broke up every attempt long before the Presidents were near the goal.

MANSFIELD TYGERS RUN WILD, TROUNCING GALION ELEVEN 51-0

Brandon, Selby Each Score Twice as Murphymen Have Field Day.

Any doubt that Mansfield would be able to put up a sterling defense of its N. C. O. league championship was effectively dispelled Saturday at Stadium field in Mansfield when the Tygers ran roughshod over the Galion Orangemen. The men of Murphy trampled Coach Fred McClintock's proteges under an avalanche of touchdowns to win, 51 to 0. Mansfield unleashed a powerful drive, scoring in every period. Galion never threatened the Mansfield goal.

Selby and Brandon, Mansfield's fleet pair of halfbacks, led the assault on the Galion goal, each romping across the final chalk line twice. Brandon sprinted 47 yards for one of the scores. Masni intercepted one of Grubaugh's aerials and raved 43 yards for another score.

AGUAYO, CHICK HEAD MAT SHOW TONIGHT

Masked Marvel To Meet Jack Brown in Semi-Final at Shovel Gym.

Light heavyweights will dominate the usual Monday night wrestling program tonight at the Steam Shovel company gymnasium. Four matmen of this division are slated to appear in the feature battle and the semi-final bout and all of them are first class toe twisters.

The feature battle between Francisco Aguayo and Dude Chick should attract a large number of the wrestling enthusiasts to the West side arena. Chick has wrestled here on numerous occasions before but his last appearance was made a long time ago and fans will have another opportunity to see his rough house tactics. Chick was somewhat of a favorite with fans here before he left this region. His opponent, the light heavy champ of Mexico, promises to give him all kinds of trouble.

"The Masked Marvel," a wrestler who chooses to hide his identity, will meet Jack Brown in the semi-final bout. The "Masked Marvel" is claimed by promoters to be one of the leading members of his weight class. He will wrestle with a black mask covering his entire head and will not remove it at any time.

There will be the usual preliminaries starting at 8:30 p. m.

LANDIS RULING ON RAJAH'S PLEA TODAY

Baseball Head To Decide If Hornsby Gets Series Cut.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 10 — Rogers Hornsby, deposed manager of the Chicago Cubs, may know today the result of his appeal for a share of the Cub's world's series money.

Baseball Commissioner Landis is expected to return to his office, after a week's illness, to give immediate consideration to Hornsby's plea. The Cubs voted to divide a pot of $101,570.24 into 24 shares, leaving out Hornsby altogether. He was released Aug. 2.

There were rumors in baseball circles that Commissioner Landis would deny Hornsby's appeal and that Hornsby himself anticipated an unfavorable decision.

With the disposal of the Hornsby case, Commissioner Landis will mail checks for the world's series pot of gold to the defeated Cubs and the victorious Yankees. The Yanks will split $152,803.35 into 30½ shares.

LA CROSSE, MAGGARD BATTLE TO DRAW IN SATURDAY RING CARD

Finalists Provide Only Action on Otherwise Drab Show at Shovel Gym.

Pete LaCrosse, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and Smoky Maggard of Covington, Ky., provided the only color to an otherwise drab fight program Saturday night at the Steam Shovel gym when they battled through 10 hectic rounds to a draw. Thirty-six rounds of fighting were offered and 26 of them offered about as much action as a Saturday afternoon quilting party.

The main bout, however, made up for any lack of action in the earlier fights. Maggard and LaCrosse tore into each other hammer and tongs in the first round and never relented in their attack for one minute of the 10-round conflict. On two occasions Jimmy Conarty, the third man in the ring found himself flattened on the canvas as the fighters battled to get at each other in close quarters.

No less than 12 knockdowns occurred during the melee, both men being down for long counts as terrific punches found their mark. Both were on the verge of being knocked out at various times but each time the bell halted hostilities before the sleep-producing punch could be loosed.

In the eight-round semi-final Jimmy Brown of Cincinnati and Moan Baumgartner of Ft. Wayne fought to a draw. Other preliminary bouts saw Kid Mondue of Marion and Peewee Wiggon of Cincinnati draw in six rounds, K. O. Stout of Marion got a technical knockout over Kenneth Garns, of Marion; Johnny Hochstetler took a decision from Johnny Earl and Marty Blue and Chuck Caprina draw.

Quarterback Ike Parker, Auburn's alternate captain, has had nine years of football experience.

Sectional Rivals Slated for Conflicts Saturday

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—Sectional championship hopes will be at stake all along the football line next Saturday in the season's most brilliant array of important games.

North and south, east and west, highly touted elevens are paired off in a series of contests that may go far toward determining the eventual section champions.

In the east, the Pittsburgh Panthers and Army clash at West Point in a battle of unbeaten elevens. Pitt walloped the cadets, 26-0, last year, and apparently has all kinds of power again.

In the Big Ten, the Michigan Wolverines, triumphant over Northwestern, tackle their traditional rivals, Ohio State and Purdue, another highly-rated contender, meets Dr. Clarence Spears' Wisconsin Badgers, conference "dark horses."

Tulane vs. Vanderbilt

The elimination of at least two of the contenders for the southern conference title seems certain with duels involving Tulane and Vanderbilt, and Alabama and Tennessee, all unbeaten thus far. Despite its close call against Georgia Saturday, Tulane, defending champion, will be favored over Vanderbilt, but the Tennessee-Alabama battle looks like a toss-up.

California and Washington State will meet in the biggest game of the Pacific coast conference schedule and the battle of Texas Christian and Texas A. and M. heads the Southwest conference slate.

There are at least a score more leading tilts in the east. Penn and Dartmouth tangle on a battle of undefeated teams as do New York University and Georgetown. And Brown and Yale although the Elis have been tied twice. Princeton promises to give Cornell all kinds of trouble.

In the war of intersectional competition, there are such contests as those involving Columbia and Virginia, Navy and Ohio University, Holy Cross and Detroit and Southern Methodists and Syracuse. Fordham and Colgate, Carnegie Tech and Washington & Jefferson should put up close battles.

Irish Meet Drake

Northwestern and Illinois, Indiana and Iowa, round out the Big Ten program with Minnesota tackling Nebraska, Big Six champion, and Notre Dame expecting little more than a workout against Drake.

Iowa State and Kansas will clash in one Big Six match and Kansas State and Missouri in another, while Oklahoma faces the Texas Longhorns.

In the Southern conference there also will be meetings between Auburn and Georgia Tech, Georgia and North Carolina, Duke and Maryland, Louisiana State and Mississippi State, Kentucky and Washington & Lee.
